

Abstract

A bezel for facilitating the connection between an external device positioned on one side of a communication panel and a module located on the other side of the panel where the 5 panel having an opening for receiving the bezel. The bezel includes a housing defining an interior portion of the bezel, a first open end for insertion into the opening of the panel and the module, where the first end receives a first communication connection from the module for 10 connection with the external device, and a second open end having a removable cover. The second end receives a second communication connection from the external device for connection with the first communication connection.